Rudolf Steiner's birthday - either 25 or 27 February

These next few days are a good time to turn our hearts toward this individual.

Rudolf Steiner once said that he did not want to be revered but rather intensely wished to be understood. So, let's bring him our understanding. Let's try to better comprehend his intentions, his impulses.

In a lecture given on 8 January 1920 he said, "Without the understanding of the science of initiation, true self-knowledge lies leagues away." So, let us ask the questions that will lead us to the understanding he wished from us, that we may also come to self-knowledge in support of the quote within the picture, that our Earth may evolve from the "Planet of Wisdom" to the "Planet of Love".

Warmly Caroline Hurner

Why Cleaning Has Meaning

How cleaning can become a quiet art of care, renewing spaces, people, and daily life.

Cleaning is usually treated as something to get through. This module aims to turn it into something else entirely. It explores how order, rhythm, and a caring gesture can change the atmosphere of a home, a classroom, or a workplace, and how a well kept space can become a refuge of calm and clarity.

Alongside practical demonstrations, we will work with observation, natural cleaning methods, and the small decisions that shape a space. Attention is also given to inner attitude; the way we clean matters as much as what we clean. The work becomes steadier, less exhausting, and quietly strengthening for everyday life.

Linda Thomas was born in South Africa in 1953. In 1988 she founded an Ecological Cleaning Institute, considered unique in Switzerland. Her love of homemaking led her to discover a deeper meaning in everyday chores, and when she began cleaning professionally, a new world opened. She was guided by one question: if spiritual effectiveness is possible through every activity, why not through cleaning and care? From this she developed a working philosophy that transforms cleaning into conscious, nurturing practice. Linda cared for the Goetheanum for 21 years, and later managed Home Economics and Services at Klinik Arlesheim until retiring in 2017. She lectures internationally.
